It is casting no reflection upon the southell warriers representing the Red football warriors representing the Red and White of the new school, to say and White of the new school, to say that they were outplayed. Explanations might be given as to why the new school lost. The defeat might be charged to poor judgment, it might be charged to not following instructions, or, again it might be charged to luck, but the fair judge of the game will not take these elements into consideration when one of two events matched.

The true sportsman is always willing to give just credit where credit is due, and that's just what the University College of Medicine team did. After the game was over there were lusty cheers for the wearers of the Green and White, and none entered into the spirit of the shear were nearly the ence in this regard; certainly none could be discerned with the eye. Both teams played with a vim and snap that was refreshing. Coach Calfee, of the Medical College, evidently watched Branch Bocock's strong V. P. L. team, for he certainly appropriated some of the plays of that forcible attacking organization. The famous and tacking organization. The famous en tacking organization. The famous end run from a kick or forward pass formation gained repeatedly with Hardy carryling the ball. The wide end runs which make the Techs spectacular on a fotball game completely fooled U. C. M., and the defensive ends were bewildered by an interference of which the old school had not been thought capable.

Play was for the greater part of the game in the territory of the White and Green. While no appreciable gains could be made against the new school's line, the ends were circled with comparative ease, and it was by using these tactics that Carter led his team to yield the second of the country. Hardy clearly have been second.

line, the ends were circled with comparative ease, and it was by using these tactics that Carter led his team to victory. Hardy clearly outpunted willis, and it must be confessed used better judgment.

Farly in the first half, after carrying the ball down the field to M. C's twenty-five-yard line, and with third down and but one yard to go, Willist the ball going to Respass. There were numerous occasions when a different play than the one chosen would have been the proper thing, but that's all in a football game.

Hard Played Game.

The honors won by the Medical College were well earned, and there is little reason for the new school to feel phagrined over the result. Hardy and Respass shone out conspicuously from the rest of the men on either team, while Collier, Futrelle and Paramour did the best work for the new school. The game began, when, after the new school wen the toss, Hardy kicked off Hoskins, who failed to return. In the line-up for scrimmage the new school went the toss, Hardy kicked off Hoskins, who failed to return. In the line-up for scrimmage the new school. The period ended with the ball was brought without success, the ball invariably being captured by the opposing team. The period ended with the ball on H. C. M.'s thirty-three-yard line, in M. On a fake pass from J. H. Davis to Ross a gain of four yards was chalked up, beginning the second Period. By carrying the ball, and with Respass bringing/the crowd to ins feet with a 23-yard gain, the ball was carried by the Green and White to the 12-

Castle Hill Hunt Hounds Lead Riders Over Strenuous Course.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Gordonaville, Va., November 22.—The Castle Hill Hunt Club, Mrs. Allen Potts, M. F. H., enjoyed a delightful run on Monday afternoon.

The seven couples of perfectly trained English hounds were cast just above the old Cowherd mill, quickly inding and running abreast high scent, led the and running abreast high scent, led the field over the water jumps, which were taken in fauttless form by all except one of the riders, this not be-ing much of a fail. The unfortunate rider quickly mounted and was soon up with the field. The course lay across "Windsor's" broad fields and stiff fences, through Watkins's pasture and Downer's treet that the part of the course is the course in the course is the course of the course is the course of the course is the course of and Downer's farm, to the first check.
The hounds were well packed, and the riders well up. They were again cast, and ran at a tremendous pace to "Logan," making there a short turn to "Happy Creek" gate.

After this second check they were cast for the third and last time at "Maple Spring," running from there to "Springfields." In taking a very stiff jump, Mr. Lawrence's good mare, Bonny Bell, falled to see the drop, and fell heavily. Mr. Lawrence remounted and was soon up with the other riders. The hounds, after circling around "Lower Springfields," ran through "Happy Creek," to the kill at "Springfields," where the club members and their guests were enterfained at breakfast by W. Beach Lawrence, of New York 1998.

After One of the Best Games

Seen This Season.

The Medical College of Virginia administered a sleeping potion to the University College of Medicine football team and carried off the honors of the day in the football gaine played yesterday, winning by a score of 9 to 0, a field goal and a touchdown, followed by a perfect goal, accounting for the points rolled up.

It was a great game, played in ideal football weather, before probably the largest crowd witnessing a game between purely local teams this season. There was plenty of rooting, enough to satisfy any one, and neither team can claim the lon's share in this direction. Unded on the north side of the field were the followers of the new school, while flanking the south side of the gridfron and well filling the grand-stand were the adherents of the Green and White. The slaug of the Bowery is defly handled by Miss Abbott, but it remains for Miss Kingsbury to out-Herod Herod in the curbstone parlance. It is one of the saulent observations of "Diamond" Mabel that "when a woman is down the world sits upon her and lights its pipe." Mabel also regrets that, with her fine feathers do not make a fine bird, remembering that "God has stamped her with the seal of Broadway where Forty-second Street cuts through."

Noah Beery, Jr., as Jordan, a plain clothes men, is indifferently good, while Will D. Howard, as Jim, the husband of Edith, trots in about the same class as the second-rate sleuth. From start to finish "Diamond" Mabel keeps well within the smollight, and her nortraya of the un-to-date female criminal is nothing whort of masterly.

The climay of the production is reached in the third and last act in a test of strength between the metronolitan detective and "Diamond" Mabel run to hay. The sponearance and physicue of Miss Kingsbury are climes as remarkable as her rendirion of a most difficult fole. She is certainly not under six feet.

It is very wrobable that the presence in Richmond last night of the country's chilef executive millisted grievously against a more creditable audience, which the show well merited. Those who attended the onening performance, however, felt themselves more than repaid. The production at a matinee, when it should receive the liberal patronage which it so very well deserves.

Eight hundred enthusiastic and loyal trudents, headed by the university band, marched to the station to see the team off on its last and agreatest trip of the season. The carriages which bore the team were drawn by yelling and hilarious students, huse showing the loyalty and confidence of the station the Tarheel football squad was given the greatest send-off ever extended to a Carolina team on the eve of its departure for a great battle on the gridiron. Cheer after cheer and song after song followed each other in quick succession, Head Coach Brides, Captain Thompson and Flul Back Porter being the favorites in this demonstration, although each man on the team came in for his share. Enthusiasm ran so high that when the train began to pull out several hundred students climbed aboard and accompanied the team over the twolve-mile journey to University Station, where a second ovation of loyalty was given Carolina's eleven, which soon left for Virginia, where it will remain until Thursday.—
